CONTENTS

How to Use This Study Guide With the Text ....4
Notes & Instructions to the Teacher ..........5
Taking With Us What Matters .................7
Four Stages to the Central One Idea .......9
How to Mark a Book.............................11
Introduction ........................................12
Basic Features & Background ...............15

PART ONE
Pre-Grammar | Preparation ..................18
Grammar | Presentation & Logic | Dialectic ....19
   The Custom House ..........................19
   Chapter 1 ..................................23
   Chapter 2 ..................................26
   Chapter 3 ..................................31
   Chapter 4 ..................................35
   Chapter 5 ..................................39
Rhetoric | Expression ..........................44

PART TWO
Pre-Grammar | Preparation ..................52
Grammar | Presentation & Logic | Dialectic ....54
   Chapter 6 ..................................54
   Chapter 7 ..................................58
   Chapter 8 ..................................62
   Chapter 9 ..................................66
   Chapter 10 ..................................70
   Chapter 11 ..................................74
   Chapter 12 ..................................77
   Chapter 13 ..................................81
   Chapter 14 ..................................84
   Chapter 15 ..................................86
Rhetoric | Expression ..........................89

PART THREE
Pre-Grammar | Preparation ..................96
Grammar | Presentation & Logic | Dialectic ....97
   Chapter 16 ..................................97
   Chapter 17 ..................................101
   Chapter 18 ..................................103
   Chapter 19 ..................................106
   Chapter 20 ..................................108
   Chapter 21 ..................................111
   Chapter 22 ..................................114
   Chapter 23 ..................................116
Rhetoric | Expression ..........................119
Memorization & Recitation ..................125

TESTS & ANSWER KEY
   Test I: Introduction - Chapter 5 ..........130
   Test II: Chapter 6 - Chapter 15 ..........132
   Test III: Chapter 16 - Chapter 24 .......134
   Test I: Introduction - Chapter 5 KEY ....138
   Test II: Chapter 6 - Chapter 15 KEY ....140
   Test III: Chapter 16 - Chapter 24 KEY ....142

Chapter 1

READING NOTES

NOTE: The most difficult and colloquial words are explained in the footnotes of the Ignatius Critical Edition; thus the Reading Notes will feature some of the words, but not all.

1. The first chapter of The Scarlet Letter is conspicuously short. Hawthorne uses this chapter to introduce the central themes of the book. Both in “The Custom-House” and “The Prison-Door,” Hawthorne reveals his characteristic caution as a writer. His style might be compared with a sprinter setting his feet before the start of a race. He is establishing his literary symbols and carefully saturating them with meaning. This short first chapter seems to be inviting us to read the chapter twice.

2. Connotation and Denotation – Students should grow accustomed to reading Hawthorne’s writing according to connotation, associations with words reaching beyond their literal meaning, and denotation, a word’s literal definition. This means not only comprehending the events, characters, settings, and objects in the tale, but also their conceptual significance. For example, when Hawthorne points out that a cemetery and a prison must be included in a new colony, he implies the indelible presence of death and wrongdoing in every human society, as cemeteries and prisons are necessary only for managing these darker elements of human experience.

3. The rosebush – Hawthorne’s use of the rosebush outside the prison door exceeds connotation to fulfill a more significant allegory in the text. This allegorical meaning is not explicit, but can be discovered in a careful analysis of the context. The Comprehension and Socratic Discussion Questions for this chapter tend towards this end. Making observations such as these results in the most productive reading of the novel and is essential to grasping Hawthorne’s style of writing.

WORDS TO BE DEFINED

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Definitions Bank</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>unpromising; foreboding</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1. The founders of a new colony, whatever Utopia of human virtue and happiness they might originally project, have invariably recognized it among their earliest practical necessities (p. 47)

   a perfect society

2. such unsightly vegetation, which evidently found something congenial in the soil that had so early borne the black flower of civilized society, a prison. (p. 48)

   sympathetic; agreeable

3. Finding it so directly on the threshold of our narrative, which is now about to issue from that inauspicious portal (p. 48)

   unpromising; foreboding
COMPREHENSION QUESTIONS

1. What two things does Hawthorne say are included in every new colony?
   a cemetery and a prison

2. What does Hawthorne call “the black flower of civilized society”?
   the prison

3. What features associate the prison-door with age?
   rust and weathering

4. What plants are growing near the prison-door?
   weeds and wild herbs, but also a rosebush

5. According to Hawthorne, where might the rosebush have come from?
   Either it was wild, surviving as the town developed around it, or it miraculously sprang up in the footsteps of a victim of Puritan religious rigidity.

SOCRATIC DISCUSSION QUESTIONS (LOGIC | Dialectic)

1. Why are a cemetery and a prison necessary in every society?
   Answers may vary. Through these two allegorical places, Hawthorne emphasizes the indelible presence of death (burial of the body) and wrongdoing (punishment of crime) in every human society.
2.  The rust on the ponderous ironwork of its oaken door looked more antique than any thing else in the new world. Like all that pertains to crime, it seemed never to have known a youthful era. (p. 47)

In this simile, Hawthorne connects the appearance of the prison door to a notion of crime’s agedness. What is Hawthorne suggesting about crime in this quote? Why does he assume that all crime is old? Based on your own consideration of the origins of crime, do you think his observation is accurate? Think of an example of something that “pertains to crime” that also seems inherently old.

This quote indicates a theoretical idea that all things pertaining to crime and wrongdoing carry an aura of age about them. Relying on a broad generalization of human experience, Hawthorne introduces an idea of original sin—that evil is very old and has always been present in human life. Students’ responses to this notion may vary widely and are well worth discussing. One example of Hawthorne’s idea worth noting is the notion that judges must be elderly individuals. Justice requires the wisdom of age, because it responds to an ancient problem of sin.

3. List some of the ways in which a rosebush or rose is generally allegorized. What concepts are usually related to its use as an image in other books, popular songs, famous works of art, etc.?

Answer may vary. Some examples of the abstract concepts regularly associated with roses are: love, beauty, hardship (thorns), or temporality.

4. Hawthorne introduces the rosebush as an important symbol in this chapter. What does he say this symbol might mean to a prisoner entering or exiting the prison? In other words, what is the rosebush a token of? Include a direct quote in your answer.

Hawthorne considers the rosebush as a fragrant balm amid trouble (the rose among thorns), and directly links this balm to Nature’s care of living things: “... in token that the deep heart of Nature could pity and be kind to [a person]” (p. 48).
5. Why might Hawthorne want us to “pluck” a rose and ponder it before reading on?

“It may serve, let us hope, to symbolize some sweet moral blossom, that may be found along the track, or relieve the darkening close of a tale of human frailty and sorrow” (p. 48). Answers to this question will vary widely. Students should take time to consider the implications of Hawthorne’s comments, as well as the quote above. This frailty and sorrow are represented, respectively, by the eventual wilting of the rose and the prick of its thorns.

This in turn relates to the indelible presence of death and wrongdoing—that is, cemeteries and prisons—introduced earlier in the chapter. While interacting with this tragedy, Hawthorne wants us never to forget the sweet scent and beauty of the flower. There is a beauty that grows from life’s thorny tangle. Hawthorne also seems to be encouraging his readers to handle his symbolism patiently, carefully observing and becoming immersed in the multifaceted nature of his subject matter.

Chapter 2

READING NOTES

NOTE: The most difficult and colloquial words are explained in the footnotes of the Ignatius Critical Edition; thus the Reading Notes will feature some of the words, but not all.

1. merciful overmuch (p. 51) – The women gathered at the prison door to witness Hester Prynne’s punishment accuse the magistrates in charge of her penalty of being “merciful overmuch,” or too kind in their judgment of Hester. This is just one example marking Hawthorne’s careful consideration throughout the novel of the natural necessity of justice and the human need for mercy. Hawthorne’s struggle to find a desirable balance between the two highlights one of the central underlying dilemmas of the novel. Hawthorne by no means exonerates Hester’s crime, but he does seek to explore the frailty of humanity to bear such strict retribution.

2. pillory (p. 55) – A pillory, a device designed to hold the head and hands up to public scorn, is distinct from the stocks, which hold only the legs. Both were contrived to punish criminals by means of public scorn, and were used since the Middle Ages for that purpose. This penalty for wrongdoing relies specifically on the public’s distaste for the crime and ridicule of the criminal, rather than the discomfort caused by the apparatus itself.